

International Journal for Human Caring
Call for Manuscripts
Special Issue Volume 14, Number 2, 2010

Simulation and Caring

The International Journal for Human Caring is a peer reviewed journal and a publication of the International Association for Human Caring (IAHC). Manuscripts are being accepted for a special issue dedicated to simulation and caring. With the increasing use of simulation for active learning, especially within the student environment...it is of concern whether or not we can teach the component of caring. We know that simulation teaches competence and confidence...and would like to know how others are bringing the caring component into the simulation field in nursing.

We welcome manuscripts that are focused on simulation from either a theoretical, research or practice perspective. Author guidelines can be found on the IAHC website <http://www.humancaring.org/journal/index.htm> Donna Taliaferro, RN, PhD and Beth Haas, MPH are the guest editors for this special issue. Inquiries about appropriate topics can be sent to either Dr. Taliaferro at dtaliaferro@bjc.org or Beth Haas at bhaas@bjc.org. Completed manuscripts should be submitted via electronic email to Dr. Taliaferro by September 21, 2009.